a powerful exploration of faith doubt and identity within the black community for d k evans a newly married professional in the christian dominated south a simple question sparked a life altering journey why do i believe in god this quest led him to understand religion and faith particularly within the black community evans draws inspiration from black intellectuals who challenged religious orthodoxy and from others in his community who questioned their core beliefs emancipation of a black atheist calls on all to ask their own questions particularly those within the black community acting on blind faith while their journey might not lead to his truth that is the only way they will ever emancipate themselves from the truths thrust on them by others and arrive at their most important truth their own this insightful memoir is for black individuals questioning religion atheists agnostics and anyone interested in the intersection of race and religion discover intellectual freedom and personal authenticity through evans s compelling story this book will speak to all readers whether religious believers or not who wish to strengthen and deepen the imaginative power of their spiritual lives this book translated for the first time into english presents the major statement of the philosophy of ludwig feuerbach here in his most systematic work feuerbach s thought on religion and on the philosophy of nature achieves its full maturity central to the thought of feuerbach is the concept that man not god is the creator that divinities are representations of man s innermost feelings and ideas philosophy should turn from theology and speculative rationalism to sound factual anthropology my aim in these lectures writes feuerbach is to transform friends of god into friends of man believers into thinkers worshippers into workers candidates for the other world into students of this world christians who on their own confession are half animal and half angel into men whole men wandering the wilderness is a guidebook for individuals who are unsure of their path or are questioning the trails they were taught in the past author ray friesen is a former pastor and at the same time a life long believing skeptic he s an advocate for abundant living and the guideposts that mark it as outlined by wholehearted living researcher dr brené brown the gifts of imperfection this informs friesen s thoughtful submission for a renewed approach to finding meaning in a life informed by the bible in a time when the relevance of those ancient writings is often thrown into question in wandering the wilderness friesen has us stop listen and learn at thirteen trail posts along life s pilgrimage in addition to brown he draws on the ancient writings bible with the help of scholars like walter brueggemann eugene peterson and peter enns all of this is shaped in the context of his personal life experiences including his journey with cancer and chemotherapy the result is a book for all who are looking for a path in their own wilderness he invites the reader to understand that developing a christian faith and spirituality can help re energize a life at times burdened with difficulty or plagued with aimlessness even maybe especially in this post modern age here is a thoughtful informed guide for wanderers weary from the journey and skeptics wondering where or if faith still matters whether you read it alone or with fellow wanderers and or skeptics wishing to believe wandering the wilderness has the potential to transform your wandering
